What should you do?

- A. Add `siteCollection.Dispose()` to the catch statement.
- B. Add `site.Dispose()` to the catch statement.
- C. Add a finally statement and include `site.Dispose()`.
- D. Add a finally statement and include `siteCollection.Dispose()`;

Answer: D

Explanation:

Need to manually dispose of the `siteCollection` instance. This can be done through a finally statement.

Note:

* Try and finally blocks or a using statement would be required to avoid potential leaks when you create a disposable object within a foreach block, as shown in the following code example.

```
SPWebApplication webApp = siteCollectionOuter.WebApplication;
```

```
SPSiteCollection siteCollections = webApp.Sites;
```

```
SPSite siteCollectionInner = null;
```

```
foreach (siteCollectionInner in siteCollections)
```

```
{
```

```
try //Should be first statement after foreach.
```

```
{
```

```
Console.WriteLine(siteCollectionInner.Url);
```

```
//Exception occurs here.
```

```
}
```

```
finally
```

```
{
```

```
if(siteCollectionInner != null)
```

```
siteCollectionInner.Dispose();
```

```
}
```

```
}
```

* Why Dispose? Several of the Windows SharePoint Services objects, primarily the `SPSite` class and `SPWeb` class objects, are created as managed objects. However, these objects use unmanaged code and memory to perform the majority of their work. The managed part of the object is much smaller than the unmanaged part. Because the smaller managed part does not put memory pressure on the garbage collector, the garbage collector does not release the object from memory in a timely manner. The object's use of a large amount of unmanaged memory can cause some of the unusual behaviors described earlier. Calling applications that work with `IDisposable` objects in Windows SharePoint Services must dispose of the objects when the applications finish using them. You should not rely on the garbage collector to release them from memory automatically. Reference: Best Practices: Using Disposable Windows SharePoint Services Objects
