NEW QUESTION: 4

You need to configure RDS to use certificates to meet the sales department requirements.

What should you do?

- A. On the RD Connection Broker servers, edit the deployment properties.
- B. On the RD Virtualization Host servers, install a certificate in the personal store of the local computer.
- C. On the RD Connection Broker servers, edit the collection properties.
- D. On the RD Web Access servers, edit the properties of the RDWeb website.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The company identifies the following requirements for the sales users:

- All of the files on the laptop computers must be encrypted.
- The amount of administrative effort must be minimized whenever possible.
- Certificate warnings must not be displayed when connecting to virtual desktops.
- The availability of the virtual desktops must not be affected by a single server failure.
- The desktop computers of the sales users must be replaced by virtual desktops that run Windows 8.
- The contents of each sales user's Documents folder must be the same on the virtual desktop and the laptop computer.
- The sales users must be able to connect to their virtual desktop from their laptop computer without using a VPN connection.

The sales users must be able to configure their user settings independently on their virtual desktop and their laptop computer.

The line-of-business applications must be installed on the virtual desktops only. The line-of-business applications require hardware acceleration to run. Once this certificate has been created it needs to be applied to the RD Gateway and RD Web Access servers. This is done in the RDS Deployment Properties
