Answer: A

Explanation:

Because a consolidated financial statement should include both P and S as a Single consolidated) reporting entity, the purchase of the outstanding bonds of S by Pat a premium was in substance a retirement of debt for more than the debt's carrying amount. This transaction should be reflected in the consolidated income statement for the year of the purchase as a constructive loss from the retirement of debt. Hence, the effect on the balance sheet is to decrease retained earnings by an amount equal to the premium plus the unamortized discount before the tax effect.
