A. It enables a Cisco-proprietary trunking protocol.
B. It enables tagging support for 1000 VLANs, including the native VLAN.
C. It prevents the port from operating with VTP.
D. It enables tagging for up to 4096 VLANs, but tagging on the native VLAN is not supported.
Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 2
Your network contains two servers named Server1 and Server2 that run Windows Server 2012 R2.

Server1 is a DHCP server that is configured to have a scope named Scope1.
Server2 is configured to obtain an IP address automatically.
In Scope1, you create a reservation named Res_Server2 for Server2.
A technician replaces the network adapter on Server2.
You need to ensure that Server2 can obtain the same IP address.
What should you modify on Server1?
A. The Name Protection settings of Scope1
B. The Advanced settings of Res_Server2
C. The MAC address of Res_Server2
D. The Network Access Protection Settings of Scope1
Answer: C
Explanation:
DHCP reservations are given based upon MAC address (at least on IPv4/DHCPv4).
For clients that require a constant IP address, you can either manually configure a static IP address, or assign a reservation on the DHCP server. Reservations are permanent lease assignments that are used to ensure that a specified client on a subnet can always use the same IP address. You can use DHCP reservations for hosts that require a consistent IP address, but do not need to be statically configured. DHCP reservations provide a mechanism by which IP addresses may be permanently assigned to a specific client based on the MAC address of that client. The MAC address of a Windows client can be found running the ipconfig /all command.
For Linux systems the corresponding command is ifconfig -a.
Once the MAC address has been identified, the reservation may be configured using either the DHCP console or at the command prompt using the netsh tool.
Media access control (MAC) address authorization functions in the same way as automatic number identification (ANI) authorization, but it is used for wireless clients and clients connecting to your network by using an 802.1X authenticating switch. Since the network adapter was replaced, you need to modify the MAC address on Server1 to ensure that Server2 can obtain the same IP address.

A. INE
B. TPM
C. HSM
D. vTPM
Answer: D
Explanation:
A Trusted Platform Module (TPM) is a microchip designed to provide basic security-related functions, primarily involving encryption keys. The TPM is usually installed on the motherboard of a computer, and it communicates with the remainder of the system by using a hardware bus.
A vTPM is a virtual Trusted Platform Module.
IBM extended the current TPM V1.2 command set with virtual TPM management commands that allow us to create and delete instances of TPMs. Each created instance of a TPM holds an association with a virtual machine (VM) throughout its lifetime on the platform.
Incorrect Answers:
B: A hardware security module (HSM) is a physical computing device that safeguards and manages digital keys for strong authentication and provides cryptoprocessing. These modules traditionally come in the form of a plug-in card or an external device that attaches directly to a computer or network server. This solution would require hardware pass-through.
C: A Trusted Platform Module (TPM) is a microchip designed to provide basic security-related functions, primarily involving encryption keys. The TPM is usually installed on the motherboard of a computer, and it communicates with the remainder of the system by using a hardware bus. Virtual machines cannot access a hardware TPM.

D: INE (intelligent network element) is not used for storing cryptographic keys.
